

COMMONWEALTH OF LEARNING

Learning for Development: Three-Year Plan 2009–2012

References:

The Programme – page 21

“Distance learning, such as the Commonwealth of Learning helps to provide, can enable students to qualify at home, increasing the likelihood that necessary skills will remain in country.” World Bank, 2000

World Bank (2000). Small states: Meeting challenges in the global economy. Retrieved from: <http://siteresources.worldbank.org/PROJECTS/Resources/meetingchallengeinglobaleconomy1.pdf>

Open Schooling – page 22

“It will be difficult if not impossible to meet the demand and need for secondary education on the scale envisaged without resorting to Open Schooling...” Rumble and Koul, 2007

Rumble, G. & Koul, B.N. (2007). Open schooling for secondary and higher secondary education: Costs and effectiveness in India and Namibia. [Online exclusive] Retrieved from: www.col.org/resources/publications/consultancies/Pages/2007-07-openSchl.aspx

Teacher Education – page 23

“Countries needing the most new teachers also currently have the least-qualified teachers.” UNESCO, 2006

UNESCO Institute for Statistics (2006). Teachers and educational quality: Monitoring global needs for 2015. Retrieved from: www.uis.unesco.org/TEMPLATE/pdf/Teachers2006/TeachersReport.pdf

Higher Education – page 23

“If your object is to transform general education, you have to begin with higher education. For higher education is the strategic heart of education; it’s where choices are developed.” Mahmoud Mamdani, 2006

Mamdani, Mahmoud. (2006). Access to quality education: For the good of all. Keynote Address at the 16th Conference of Commonwealth Education Ministers. Retrieved from www.thecommonwealth.org/shared_asp_files/GFSR.asp?NodeID=169761

The Virtual University for Small States of the Commonwealth (VUSSC) – page 24

“ICT is important for every country in the world, but arguably more so for small, isolated states... Small market size and limited capacity calls for institutional and organisational solutions that would not make sense in larger states.” World Bank, 2008

World Bank. (2008). Small states, smart solutions: Improving connectivity and increasing the effectiveness of public services. Retrieved from:

Skills Development – page 25

“Occupationally-related technical and vocational skills... cover a range from basic levels of craft, design and technology to higher knowledge-based skills, and they span commercial, industrial, agricultural and service occupations.” Kenneth King, 2009

King, Kenneth. (2009). Outline issues for a technical and vocational education and training (TVET) strategy for UNESCO. Unpublished manuscript.

Learning for Farming – page 25

“For farmers, adjustment means adopting new practices, not only technical, but new ways of managing finances, natural resources and markets. This highlights the role of learning in rural adjustment and development.” Sue Kilpatrick and Ian Falk, 2003

Kilpatrick, S and Falk, I (2003) Learning in agriculture: Building social capital in island communities. Local Environment, 8 (5), 501-512. doi: 10.1080/1354983032000143662. Retrieved from: http://eprints.utas.edu.au/876/2/Kilpatrick_Loc_Env_final.pdf

Healthy Communities – page 26

“Health is the product of many different, but interrelated factors – biological, social, environmental, cultural and economic. Other factors are where a person lives, their level of income and what they eat. Equally important is that people have a say in the decisions that affect their well-being.” Canadian Nurses Association, 2005

Canadian Nurses Association. (2005). Health communities and nursing. [Backgrounder]. Retrieved from: http://www.cna-nurses.ca/CNA/documents/pdf/publications/BG5_Healthy_Communities_e.pdf

Integrating eLearning – page 26

“The most advanced educational technology should go first to the most disadvantaged learners.” Sugata Mitra, 2006

Mitra, Sugata. (2006, October 31). New technologies on the Internet for self-organising systems in e-learning. Presentation at the Fourth Pan-Commonwealth Forum on Open Learning. Retrieved from the PCF4 Web Site: <http://pcf4.dec.uwi.edu/viewpaper.php?id=364>

Monitoring and Evaluation – page 32

“The secret isn’t counting the beans; it’s growing more beans.”

Goizueta, Roberta (n.d.). Retrieved from: http://money.cnn.com/magazines/fortune/fortune_archive/1995/11/13/207671/index.htm